DAVID C. M'LAUGHLIN CROSSES DARK RIVER

Prominent Mining Operator Succumbs to Pneumonia.

ACTIVE CAREER ENDED

WAS ONE OF UTAH'S PROGRES-SIVE CITIZENS.

After struggling for six days with an aggravated attack of pneumonia, David C. McLaughlin, the well known mining operator, passed peacefully into 10:40 last night. At his bedside, when death came, were his wife, Rev. D. D. Wallace and Mr. McLaughlin's physilans, Drs. Pinkerton, Bascom and A. C. Ewing. In addition to those who were watching at the bedside during the last hours, the parlors of the hos-pital were filled with friends who had gathered to learn of his condition and hope with his patient wife for a change which never came. For the twentyhope with his patient wife for a change which never came. For the twenty-four hours preceding his death it became apparent that the end was approaching and with the exception of a short interval during his last moments, when he recognized his wife, the patient was delirious and knew none of those in attendance. The greatest sympathy goes out to the bereaved wife and little daughter.

No arrangements had been made for the funeral last night, but Senator Arthur Brown, who had taken the matter in hand, assisted by Henry Newell, stated that the burial would undoubtedly take place here on Sunday afternon next, though details could hardly be given until the arrival of his brothers from Michigan tomorrow.

Biographical Sketch.

David C. McLaughlin was born in Beardstown, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1854, and was consequently nearly 47 years of age. During his early childhood his parents moved to Michigan and there he grew to manhood. His mother died in 1899 and his father eight years before. Three brothers survive him, william B., James and Andrew C., the latter of whom has been a professor at Ann Arbor for many years, while William B. is a banker at Muskegon and James is a lawyer.

David C. McLaughlin was a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan and for seven years, including the period he was at college, he was connected with the great law firm of Smith, Nims, Hoyt & Erwin, of Muskegon and from there he went to Park City where he has since resided. In 1830 he was agent and attorney for the Park City Townsite company. Later he succeeded Edwin P. Ferry as trustee of the townsite corporation and with the latter purchased what is known as Snyder's addition and was in charge of the entire business up to the time of his death.

A Progressive Citizen.

A Progressive Citizen.

He was ose of the most public-spirited and progressive men in the community where he lived and in 1884 he was accorded the distinction of being elected as the second Liberal or nonMormon member of the house of representatives in the Utah legislature.
Two years later he was chosen to succeed himself.

On the Road to Fortune.

When the Quincy company was organized, about two years ago, D. C. McLaughlin went in as manager and, with one exception, as the heaviest shareholder, Colonel W. M. Ferry, who previously controlled the property, being the leaviest. Just what his interest was, could not be learned last night, but that it was sufficient to have made him immensely wealthy within a few years had he lived, is quite well known.

David C. McLaughlin will be missed and mourned by a multitude of friends chapel is without a shepherd. Rev. tim to his craving for intoxicants. Loyal friends have procured for him a ticket to New York City and he leaves over the Union Pacific at 7 o'clock tonight for the nation's metropolis. There will be general regret, not only among Mr. Scott's friends, but among Mr. Scott's friends, served the municipality as city attorney and never advocated anything in the way of school or municipal legislation but that afterwards proved beneficial. He was a man whose "yes" or "no" always settled a question and his word was his bond, always and everywhere.

He was a director in the Anchor, Alliance, Woodside, Crescent and other mining companies at different times, and is understood to have been a heavy shareholder in many different corporations.

On the Road to Fortune,

When the Quincy company was organized, about two years ago, D. C. McLaughlin went in as manyager and the many different colling the first tender. "I have a sermon to preach at 11 o'clock."

Mr. Scott didn't preach at 11 o'clock Sunday morning or any other time. He has been staying at the residence of W. A. Sherman on Brigham street during the absence of the family in the east. He spent Sunday and Sunday night there. A friend who passed the house about 11 o'clock, saw ail the lights burning as if a festival were in progress. Later Mr. Scott was seen to slip out and down town, where he resumed his drinking.

Mr. Scott was seen at the Sherman home last night. He said he did not desire to be interviewed regarding his fall. He was told of the stories in circulation. "I presume they have been greatly exaggerated," was his only comment. Mr. Scott added that one of the reasons for his departure was that the altitude out here affected him unfavorably.

was that the altitude out here affected him unfavorably.

The escapade of Mr. Scott in San Francisco some months ago, which was the cause of his removal from Salt Lake, is still fresh in the public mind. A short time ago he was assured that all would be forgiven if he came back to his parishioners and on Sunday, June 2, he came back. He expressed great contrition for his first fall and promised that the like would never occur to him again.

COLONIZATION IN MEXICO.—Contents the dispatch printed yesterday to the effect that a Mormon colonization movement was on in the territory of the yaqui indians, in Mexico, 't was stated at the president's office that no information to that effect had been received. The man mentioned as the church's agent, James Cannon, is unknown. President A. W. Ivins of the Mexico mission was recently authorized to purchase more land for colonists and conduct the movement as he sees fit. It is thought this may be also of his plans.

Mormon member of the house of representatives in the Utah legislature. Two years later he was chosen to succeed himself.

On June 23, 4888, he was married to Miss Etta Young and one child, Isabel Lois, who is now 9½ years old, is the result of that union.

In Park City, David C. McLaughlin was known as a man of the strictest integrity, independent in character, and one who always stood willing and ready to do more than his share in any undertaking calculated to benefit the community. He was a member of every school board from 1899 up, served the nunicipality as city attorney and never advocated anything in the way of school or municipal legis.
